Amazing Grace, How Sweet the Sound

by Dr. R. Glen Miles

When we proclaim a word of grace to a world dying for love, dying for hope, dying to be received for who they are, we are following in the footsteps of Jesus.

When we allow grace to become the driving force in our congregation, we are becoming more like the church that God calls us to be.

When grace is at work in our homes, our offices, our schools and our playgrounds, we are living out the very gospel.

Grace is amazing but it is not an easy thing to understand. I was teaching a Bible study on Romans many years ago in another church. We came to chapter 8 and that marvelous section that reminds us “that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor rulers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, NOR ANYTHING else in all creation will be able to separate us from the love of God.”

I suggested to the class that the implication here was quite clear: God will do everything possible to bring us under the loving care of heaven. God will never run out of patience with us. God, in this life or in the next, will do everything possible to bring all of us to the place named home, to the place where we finally will be loved.

A man in the class asked to speak to me afterward. “I’ve lived my whole life doing the right thing, practicing morality, making the right choices. Now you’re telling me it didn’t matter, that God loves everybody anyway. Why should I bother with living a good life when grace is there?” The central issue? He didn’t think he needed grace.

I understand what he is getting at but look at Jesus in the gospel stories. He is kind and compassionate to the lost, the least, the little, the sinners, the ones who knew that they needed grace. He saved his harshest words for the super religious ones who thought they didn’t need grace.

In the book, If Grace is True, the authors write, “God has loved us from the very beginning...God did not wait to see if we were lovable. God did not require us to earn God’s love. God did not reserve his love for some and deny it to others. God has loved all of us from the very beginning.” Amazing and true.

Grace and peace to you,

Back to Church

by Lara Schopp, Director of Communications

My niece's chin quivered. Her expressive blue eyes welled with tears and her brow furrowed. She gulped back a sob as she whispered, "But I won't know anyone. None of my friends will be there."

No amount of reassurance, by way of hugs, encouragement, or promise of special treats, comforted her. She was convinced that the next day was going to be the absolute worst day of her 6-year-old life: the first day of First Grade.

Though she'd sailed effortlessly through Kindergarten, charming teachers along the way, the thought of First Grade had been troubling her. Yes, the building would be familiar. Yes, she liked reading, learning and making friends. "But in First Grade you have to do HOMEWORK!" she cried. "I don't even know how to do homework!" A new teacher and a classroom without any familiar friends can sound so ominous to a sensitive child. "I'm feeling so nervous," she wept, the abundance of confidence she usually displays evaporated.

The first day came, and I was anxious and nervous for her, worried she'd be pink-faced and crying as her parents dropped her off; worried she'd be feeling sad and alone all day. Finally, word came from her parents: Once she stepped into that familiar school, it all came back to her. She flitted about hugging teachers missed over the summer. She admired her new classroom with her name on her desk. When I saw her after school, the twinkle had returned to her eyes as she told me, animatedly, that she'd had a "Fantastic Day!"

As children go back to school across the metro area, those of us with children in our lives are preparing to settle back into a familiar routine. For many, that routine includes a return to church after a summer spent away. And for some of us coming back to church after a lengthy time away might feel a little scary, like the first day of First Grade. Will we feel welcomed at the front door? Will worship feel unfamiliar? Will anyone remember our names?

This Sunday, Aug. 18, is Festival Sunday, a great day to come back to church. Whether you've been away for the summer, or for many years; whether you've been away from Country Club Christian Church or away from church in general, maybe this is a good Sunday to come back. I guarantee that, even if you're nervous, you are bound to be greeted by a friendly face, you're sure to hear inspirational words and music, and you might even make new friends. And we won't even make you do homework.

Join us this Sunday. It's going to be a Fantastic Day!

Lara

August Collection Connection: School Uniforms

During August, we are collecting new and used school uniforms for the children at Hartman Elementary School. Suggested places to purchase the uniforms are JCPenney, Sears, Dollar General, Target, Old Navy, or you may donate cash. We need the following items for kindergarten through 6th grade girls and boys in sizes 5 to 16:

- Navy or white polo shirts – short or long sleeve
- Khaki or navy pants, skirts, or jumpers
- Short white socks

Please bring your donation to the parlor or send a check to the office marked “school uniforms.”

Country Club Christian Church is beginning its fourth school year partnering with Hartman School in the Kansas City, Missouri School District. The majority of students at Hartman receive free or reduced price lunches and many come to school without uniforms because their parents cannot afford to buy them.

An Unforgettable Moment

by Rev. Janet Weiblen, Interim Pastoral Associate

I hang out in prisons. It's a "God thing." I'm not sure why God decided to send me into prisons, it just happened. And I could no more have ignored that call than I could have turned my back on God. I've come to see it as a way to give back, as a way to bring compassion and healing into a place where brokenness is the norm. The men and women in prison are among the most forsaken people in the world. I've been into prisons now for more than 20 years, and I'm still amazed at some of the things I hear and learn--especially about lost childhoods. Yet these individuals rarely understand the loss; it's a norm for them. They simply endure it, unaware of how much it mangles their souls.

I've learned a great deal in prison: how much a touch on the arm or a handshake can mean to someone who never feels the warmth of a kind touch. It's seems small and insignificant, but to them, it's caring and comfort. It's love.

I've seen tough, initially shy and awkward men learn to laugh—at me, but mostly "with me." They think it's great fun to steal my favorite positive thoughts: "Be the change you want to see in the world" or "Change is inevitable; growth is optional." We begin a meeting with each person sharing a positive thought and they come up with ways to foil me. One might use my quote; another might say: "Your quotes have been banned." It might seem silly, but silliness isn't something that happens in prison. In many ways, it's relief, relief from the nastiness they encounter on a routine basis. It may well be the only time all week when they can laugh at someone and not be ridiculed for it. And I'm glad they've become comfortable enough to do it with me.

Lots of people think I'm nuts to go into prison. Maybe I am. But I've seen incredible transformations happen—not because we talk about God or anything religious, but because this has become a place where they can share their feelings and even sometimes bare their souls. This is a place where someone will listen and not condemn; it's a place where they're respected as human beings, regardless of their brokenness. Prison can be a "God place."

Anytime you want to join me for an evening, let me know. I'd be delighted to introduce you to my friends.

Janet
