Praying Together for the USA

By Dr. R. Glen Miles

On Nov. 9, at the end of a long day, I took a moment to pray for the United States. I confess my prayer was not profound. Like many of you, I stayed up until the wee hours watching election returns. I struggled to find words. My prayer was simply this: “Gracious God, my trust is in you, the Lord of All. Watch over the USA as we move forward with a new president. Amen.” The prayer will not win me any awards but I want you to know it was spoken from my heart.

There are some in our congregation who are heart-broken over the result of this election. And, by the same token, there are others who are celebrating. I’ve thought about what to say to every member of our church since Secretary Clinton conceded the election to Mr. Trump. My thoughts went back to the Lord’s Table and the words I recently spoke there. I quoted from Paul’s letter to the church in Galatia, “There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female...” You may recall I added, “there is no longer Republican or Democrat, for all of you are one in Christ Jesus.”

I believed that was true on election day as Julie and I spent the day volunteering to drive “Souls to the Polls.” I believed it was true after President-Elect Trump’s victory was declared on Wednesday. We in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) have always worked hard to welcome everyone to the table, regardless of who they are or where they are from. We take that effort seriously but often it means there will be someone sitting there with whom you strongly disagree. Many churches follow a safer route, one that creates a congregation filled with like-minded folks. But in our church where there are a variety of views and a diversity of thought we strive to name our unity in Christ as our guiding principle.

In the days ahead, we will continue to welcome all in the name of Jesus Christ. As my friend Sharon Watkins, General Minister and President of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) wrote recently, our church will minister to “people of all races, ages, gender identities, abilities, religions, and yes, politics, and to find ways to work together to extend to each other – across the whole human family – the abundance of a generous God.”

Here, we are actively working to fight racism and we will continue in that effort. Throughout our history we have recognized women as ones fully gifted by God to serve in every aspect of church life and leadership. Our congregation will lead in the effort to welcome refugee families to the Kansas City area. We will preach that the all-inclusive love and grace of God is bigger than anything we have ever imagined. We will go to the most hellish places on earth with not only the good news of God’s mercy but the willingness to partner with humans wherever there is pain and sorrow. We will stand with the LGBTQ community, recognizing they too are part of God’s family.

It is an overwhelming privilege it is to serve as your pastor. I am continually amazed at the depth of your love for God, your joy in the presence of each other and your willingness to care for the world. The times ahead of us are unique but we can, through the gracious love of the Creator of all, find the strength we need to follow the one we name Lord and Savior of all.

With grace and hope,

Adult Ministries at Country Club Christian Church

Artist to Be at The Well on Nov. 20

Local artist, Bernadette "Bernie" Lee, will be at The Well on Sun., Nov. 20 selling notecards and prints. Proceeds benefit Week of Compassion.

After almost 30 years as a fine wine professional, a permanent shoulder injury left her unable to lift cases of wine, but she was still able to lift a pen and paintbrush. Her previous hobby of painting landscapes and drawing custom home portraits, has evolved into a passion for creating lasting memories of places that people hold close to their heart. The detailed iconic scenes of Kansas City take from five days up to two weeks to sketch, and then finish in pen and watercolor.

Super Powers Are Over-rated

By Rev. Chuck Pickrel, Director of Student Ministries

For as long as I can remember, I've wanted to be a super hero. Reading comic books, watching television, going to movies, playing video games, and standing on the roof with a cape... I have fed my Super Hero dreams as much as I possibly could. I often find myself drifting off into fantasies of saving the world from evil geniuses and other worldly threats of horrific proportions.

As I've grown older, I have also had dreams of saving people from more familiar threats: war, hunger, oppression, natural disaster... the list goes on and on. But alas, I have neither the super natural ability or limitless wealth and technology to make these dreams anything other than fantasy.

The entertainment value of the Super Hero has become little more than escapism. I can watch fictional characters and dust just a little more hopelessness off before returning to the real world, where very real people are dealing with very real threats none of us can block with our non-existent powers.

But we are NOT helpless. We CAN be heroes. While we may not be able to stop a speeding train, we can use our hands and feet to bring hope to the oppressed. We can use our resources to bring food to the hungry. We can use our strength and persistence to clean up after the disasters. We can use our hearts, minds, and mouths to bring hope and love through prayer and action. We each have within us the power to make change for the better, and to stand with our sisters and brothers who cannot stand on their own.

So, while I don't have a nifty super suit, I do have faith that we can all do good. Each of us can be a hero in so many ways, from the simplest friendly greeting to the heaviest donation of food, we can all make a difference. I know I'll see you out there, fellow heroes!

Love in Christ,

Chuck

Boring Socks, Powerful Prayers

By Rev. Joe Walker, Minister of Congregational Care

I have one pair of “I Heart KC – Red and Yellow” socks from our very own local entrepreneurs, SOCK101. Other than that, all my socks are black and cotton. Oh, and boring. But they are clean and when they wear out I recycle the cotton and buy some new socks.

It occurs to me that when I put my socks on in the morning, I should say a prayer of gratitude because I have clean, boring socks. And, I should pause to remember all the people in our city who do not have clean, boring socks to wear that day.

You may remember that last Christmas we donated 800 pairs of socks to our friends at Independence Boulevard Christian Church’s Micah Ministry. I think most of the socks were white tube socks; still boring but at least they were clean and new. Each pair was filled with travel-sized toiletries – soap, shampoo, toothbrush and toothpaste, lip balm, etc. – and tied with a festive ribbon.

I hope you will buy a pair of socks (or a few pair) and fill them for this year’s collection. I invite you to experience filling the socks as a guided prayer meditation.

As you roll the first sock to stuff it inside the second one which will house all the items, imagine the person who will receive the socks. Are they homeless? What do they look like? By the way, the average age of a homeless person in Kansas City is 7 years old. That’s right, a second grader.

Carefully put the soap and shampoo in the sock and imagine that you are placing the items in the recipient’s hands. Soap and shampoo seem so domestic, so mundane, yet for a person working at a job that pays less than a living wage, basic personal care items may be a luxury beyond their means.

Add the lip balm and hand lotion to the sock and let a gentle word come to your mind and fill your heart. Softly say the word aloud as if you are speaking to this new acquaintance. The word repairs some of the harshness experienced by those who suffer in poverty.

Now tie the sock closed. Over, under, around, through – the ribbon flowing with your fingers and creating a bow. Let the action become a gesture tying the two of you together in your shared humanity. Recognize this bow – and every bow this holiday season – as a symbol of your commitment to care for those in need and address the root causes of poverty. Amen.

Joe
